

Jeff Moos

Drummer Jeff Moos joined Randy Ellefson's band in late 2004 in support of local performance of the debut album, The Firebard, and has played in concert with Ellefson ever since. Since 1991, he's performed at some of the biggest local rock venues, including Jaxx in Springfield Virginia (opening for Savatage), and at two Powermad Festivals.

Previously, Moos was a founding member of Mercury Rising, a progressive metal band that released two albums on Noise International before breaking up "for the usual reasons". Most recently, Moos added his distinctive, atmospheric style to Ellefson's second album.

Discography:

Some Things Are Better Left Unsaid	(2007) – Randy Ellefson
Building Rome	(1998) – Mercury Rising
Upon Deaf Ears	(1994) – Mercury Rising

Dave DeMarco

Bassist Dave DeMarco is one of the busiest session and live players in the Mid-Atlantic region, with as many as thirty shows a month at everything from local dives to the RFK Stadium in the Vans Warped Tour and 1st Mariner Arena in Baltimore Maryland. He's endorsed by Vintage Tone Project pedals and has been heard on various film and television projects, including MTV's Punk'd, Six Feet Under, ESPN, and the Night Sounds film score.

DeMarco was hired to add his skills and fills to Ellefson's second album, Some Things Are Better Left Unsaid.

Regionally, he has appeared on a dozen albums by local artists and recently performed in the local All-Star Jam. Having attended both the Berklee College of Music and Peabody Preparatory has helped make DeMarco one of the most highly sought after performers and bass instructors in the area.